Enact Cordiner "Missing Provisions," AFA Asks Congress; Boost Allowances

(Honor Pay Chairman, P. 11)

DALLAS, TEX.

RECALLING that the new pay bill covered only part of the report of the Cordiner Committee on military personnel policies, the Air Force Association, at its national convention here, called upon Congress to enact the "missing provisions."

The following benefits should be provided for military personnel in consequence with the provisions of the Cordiner Report,
the Association declared in a resolution:

"(1) Quarters allowances should be increased to reflect the 28 per cent average rise in rentals since the quarters allowances were last adjusted; and

"(2) Provision should be made for service at remote and isolated stations and

"Cut Rate" EM Plan Hurts Officer Hopes

Any hopes that the Budget Bureau might give an early go-ahead for implementing Officer Responsibility Pay of up to $150 per month appeared doomed this week with announcement of details concerning the long-promised enlisted Proficiency Pay Program.

Congress authorized the Pentagon to use one of two systems for the extra EM pay. Benefits of up to $150 per month were possible.

Instead, the Defense Department proposed a flat $35 per month in Proficiency Pay for enlisted personnel designated by the Services.

The Budget Bureau cut this to $30 per month, and that's the amount that will be paid.

Only the Navy this week had indicated an exact date when it planned to start Proficiency Pay. The Navy said it would give the added $30 to some 1,400 chief petty officers, who took examinations in August, effective 16 November.

The other Services said they were

Army Will Name 271 Colonel Selections, Announces New "Eagle" Promotions

THE Army will release next week the names of 271 lieutenant colonels selected for temporary promotion to colonel by boards which adjourned 28 August and 18 September.

At the same time, first names of officers promoted as a result of this selection action were released this week.

The initial promotions to colonel were reported in Special Orders 194 and 195.
Names of the Army's newest colonels are published on Page 4 of this issue.

"Sick Pay" Benefits Denied To Disabled Service People In Federal Employ

(Discrimination Charged, Page 17)

DISABILITY retired military personnel have been barred from claiming income tax "sick pay" benefits when they work for the Federal Government.

Mr. Dan J. Ferris, Acting Director of the Internal Revenue Service's Tax Rulings Division in Washington, has made this known in a communication to the Pentagon.

"Sick pay" benefits allow disability retired personnel to exclude up to $100 per week of the taxable portion of their retired pay until the time they reach "retirement age."

In the case of the Navy, "retirement age" for officers is the age at which they would have completed 40 years service or age 62, whichever is earlier. For Navy enlisted men, it is the age at which they would have completed 30 years service, regardless of age.

No authoritative "retirement age" determinations have yet been issued for Army or Air Force personnel.

ant. Colonel Harlow will be responsible for legislative liaison.

Lt. Gen. E. R. Quesada, USAF-Ret., who has been Special Assistant to the President on aviation matters and head of the Airways Modernization Board (THE JOURNAL 27 September) will become head of the new Federal Aviation Agency.

President Eisenhower, in announcing General Quesada's appointment, noted that he will resign his commission before his appointment becomes effective 1 November. Retired in 1951, General Quesada was saluted by the President for his willingness to resign his commission in order to lead the Aviation Agency.

General Quesada's resignation, said General Eisenhower, who of course also resigned his commission, "represents a sacrifice which I feel reflects his sense of public duty."

The President added: "The fact that a man of Mr. Quesada's qualifications is obliged to resign his retired status in the regular Air Force to comply with the letter of the law so he again can serve his country does not, in my opinion, seem logical or desirable."

"I am confident," said General Eisenhower, "that it was not the intention of the Congress that in Mr. Quesada's case his additional public service should deprive him of the honors and status acquired during his years of service to his country in the military establishment and, lately, as my special assistant."

"I hope," the President concluded, "that the Congress when it convenes in January will adopt legislation which will restore him to the status he had prior to his resignation and, at the same time, permit him to serve as Administrator of the Federal Aviation Agency."

Now on duty with the Navy, Temco's TT-1 Pinto is an advance-guard aircraft.. first to introduce the concept of an all-jet syllabus for aviation training. And already, while still under evaluation, the Pinto is growing.. stepping up greatly in power, agility and safety.

Designed from the very beginning for growth through simple modification, the production Pinto will be equipped with a Continental J69-T-25 engine in place of its J69-T-2. This engine changeover will be accomplished without noticeable change in outward appearance, without significant internal changes. Further modifications will extend the Pinto's ability to carry more equipment.. let it grow with the man.. make it capable of performing almost the entire primary/basic syllabus at considerably less than half the cost of any other jet trainer available or under development.

This sleek, speedy jet trainer was designed, developed and produced entirely by Temco. And while it is a prime example of the unusual talents and capabilities Temco possesses, it is just one phase of Temco's widely diversified work. Other phases are research and development in the field of advanced weapon systems.. new developments and fabrication techniques in stainless steel, titanium and other high temperature materials. All part of Temco's continued pioneering of the "total package" concept of design, tooling and production of aircraft and missiles.. of its complete weapons systems management capabilities.

BOQ Study

and a private bath for all bachelor officers.

The Army reported that a "limited number of intermediate facilities for nurses' BOQ's currently authorized, include a kitchen-dinette to be shared between two officers.

"It is planned," said the Army, "to build BOQ's for male officers to this same general design in the near future."

It can be presumed, however, that the dinette will be eliminated in the new BOQ plans.

Defense Department officials, in response to an inquiry from THE JOURNAL said that an all-Service group is now looking into the BOQ problem.

Any recommendations for improvements will require, of course, new funding requests in the defense budget, unless a way can be found to obtain private financing of BOQ facilities under a Government guarantee program.

Pentagon authorities said that the BOQ study at present is in at an "informal stage," involving representatives of three Military Departments, the office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Manpower, Personnel and Reserve, and the office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Properties and Installations.

The Services at an opening session were asked to present recommendations on steps that should be taken to improve BOQ accommodations as a result of Congressional action which raises from $750 to $8500 the limit on expenditures for BOQ quarters.

There is wide recognition in all the Services that BOQ's and BWQ's, on the whole, are woefully inadequate.

Assure Medical Care In Joint Commands, AFA Asks Intelligence Section In JCS

(Other Medical Notes, Page 14)

DALLAS, TEX.

ASSURANCE of adequate military medical care in the unified and specified Commands and the establishment of a "medical intelligence" section in the Joint Chiefs of Staff, is recommended in a resolution adopted by the Air Force Association at its convention here.

The resolution expressed the fear that the Defense Reorganization will involve such changes in the activities of the Secretary of Defense, the JCS, the three military services, and the Joint Staff as will affect the collection and proper use of military medical information.

The resolution, submitted by the AFA's Medical Advisory Council, was adopted after considerable discussion on the floor of the convention.

The Association asked that all concerned in the Reorganization give careful consideration to:

"a) The adoption of such measures as will assure adequate military medical care in the joint commands, special task forces, and military missions, and

"b) That there be established within the Joint Chiefs of Staff a section of medical intelligence which will collect and disseminate information on advanced military medical research, military medical logistics, and such other information as might be useful in the furtherance of the purposes of the military forces of the United States."

Better Atomic Battlefield Protection Is Aim Of Largest U. S. Solar Furnace

NATICK, MASS.

BETTER protection for soldiers on the atomic battlefield is foreseen with the opening here of the nation's largest solar furnace at the Quartermaster Research and Engineering Command.

The furnace, second only to one at France's National Scientific Research Center, is expected to produce temperatures of over 5,000 degrees Fahrenheit over an area about four inches in diameter.

Its primary function, however, will not be to test the effects of high temperatures, but to determine what materials can best resist concentrated doses of radiation similar to those which would occur from an atomic or hydrogen explosion.

The solar radiation which is concentrated by the new furnace, Quartermaster officials explain, closely simulates the thermal radiation to which soldiers could be exposed in the vicinity of nuclear explosions.

Until the present time, it was explained, all available sources for testing radiation were inadequate, because they could not provide a high, uniform intensity over a relatively large area. These sources included high-current carbon arcs, gas-fired panels, burning magnesium and incandescent lamps.

Dedicating the solar furnace, Lt. Gen.
Arthur G. Trudeau, Army Chief of Research and Development, noted that while "this furnace has been placed here for specific purposes in connection with military uses, it need not be confined to such uses and it is my hope that it will be utilized to the maximum extent practicable for the advancement of American science and industry as well as in the interests of national defense."

The four major components which make up the $270,000 furnace are a helio-stat, concentrator, attenuator and test chamber, all occupying a ground space of 125 feet by 40 feet.

Located on either end of the furnace, the heliostat and concentrator reflect and focus the sun's rays at a point within the test chamber, situated between the two.

The attenuator, placed between the test chamber and concentrator, acts like a venetian blind to regulate the amount of sunlight which is allowed to pass between the heliostat and concentrator.

In operation, the sunlight is caught and evenly reflected by the heliostat, past the test chamber and through the at-tenuator on to the 180 concave mirrors of the concentrator. The rays are then focused by the concentrator and reflected back through a square hole in the at-tenuator on to a four inch diameter area in the test chamber.

Maj. Gen. Calloway Provides Cool Comfort

NATICK, MASS.

On hot summer days when the rest of the nation is sweltering or seeking air-conditioned refuge, Army missilemen will be walking around in their own individually-air-conditioned suits.

This special benefit has been made available to the space age soldiers courtesy of Maj. Gen. Charles G. Calloway's Quartermaster Research and Engineering Command, Natick, Mass.

It is designed especially for missile fueling personnel who must be thoroughly protected against the highly toxic and corrosive effects of modern liquid rocket fuels.

Because protective clothing for these personnel had to be completely resistant to the liquid fuel chemicals, Quartermaster officials explain, it had to be designed almost air-tight. The 21 pound air conditioners were designed and installed in the suits to keep the suits from becoming too hot due to accumulated body-heat.

In addition to many other projects to food, clothing and fuel for the Armed Forces, General Calloway's command is also working on low level parachutes for future flying jeep and flying platform personnel. Because they will operate at relatively low altitudes, it is explained, the flying jeesters will not be able to use conventional high-altitude chutes.

In addition to General Calloway, key Command personnel spearheading the drive for provide U. S. soldiers with the best possible equipment are: Col. Hoke S. Wofford, QMR&D Deputy Commander;
Dr. A. S. Hunter, Command Scientific Director; and Dr. J. F. Oerterling, Com-

F-101s Complete Bermuda To Carswell Flight Non-Stop Without Refueling

CARSWELL AFB
FT. WORTH, TEX.

THREE F-101 Voodoos of the 12th Air
Force's 27th Fighter Wing, Bergstrom AFB, Tex., landed here 25 September after what was described as the longest non-stop, non-refueled flight for Century series fighter aircraft.

The flight, called Operation Long Leap, covered the 1,896 miles from Kindley AFB, Bermuda, in three hours and nine minutes. Capt. Ronald Layton made the fastest time of the three aircraft involved.

Maj. Gen. Chester E. McCarty, 12th Air Force Commander, was here to greet the men.

Following Captain Layton were Capt.

James E. Jarvis, whose time was three hours 27 minutes, and 1st Lt. Edward Turner, whose time was one minute slower. Both had to hold over Carswell for some minutes while the Thunderbirds finished their demonstration for the Air Force Association.

Lieutenant Turner blew a tire on landing, but the plane was not damaged, although fire engines were called out as a precaution.

The F-101s took off from Bermuda with long range wing tanks which they later dropped. First landfall was near Myrtle Beach, S. C.

"Cut Rate" Plan

waiting final approval from DoD before announcing specific plans.

It had been indicated that the Army might be the last to start Proficiency Pay, in view of its new enlisted management program just now being announced.

However, Army officials said this week that "we do not intend to be left at the post."

Good guess is that by the end of the year, each of the Services will have received the $30 payment.

The Defense Department said it expects to spend $13 million for Proficiency Pay this year, which will go to about 80,000 enlisted men.

Preliminary plans call for 29,000 to receive Proficiency Pay in the Army; 25, 000 in the Air Force; 20,000 in the Navy; and 6,000 in the Marine Corps.

Although the Defense Department advocated Proficiency Pay, as was recommended by the Cordiner Committee, it did not endorse the plan, subsequently approved, for extra pay to officers in the ranks of captain through colonel.

Senator John Stennis (D-Miss.), was the leading supporter for extra pay to reward officers in positions of extraordinary responsibility.

Pentagon officials said that the program would be extremely difficult to administer.

In view of the Budget Bureau's reluctance to approve more than $30 for enlisted Proficiency Pay, it can be taken for granted that there will be no rush to approve any extra pay for officers.

On the other hand, if the Defense Department makes no move at all to provide extra officer pay, its officials can anticipate some rugged questioning by Senator Stennis when Congress returns to action in January.

Pay Saved Millions, Strengthened USAF

DALLAS, TEX.

While all personnel problems have not been solved, the increases in reenlist-ment rates which have followed the new pay legislation will save millions and result in a stronger Air Force.

So Air Force Secretary James H. Douglas declared in an address to the Air Force Association here 27 September.

In a speech that followed the award of the Vandenberg Trophy to Mr. Ralph H. Cordiner, Secretary Douglas said:

"The new military pay legislation not only creates a reasonably satisfactory pay scale, but provides a proficiency pay system to help retain in the Service scarce technical skills. This legislation is a great step forward in making Air Force careers attractive. We know that pay is only one of many factors in determining whether we can retain the skills required to operate a modern Air Force, but it is at the heart of the problem.

"Under the new law we are this month upgrading 2,000 master sergeants to the grade of senior master sergeant with more to follow. A plan to inaugurate proficiency pay that will affect some 25,000 airmen in 54 different technical skills has been approved.

"Reenlistment overall is over 50% as against a level of about 30% three years ago, and in some highly technical skills it is up from 10% and less, to 30% and more.

"We have not solved our problems, but these figures mean abler, better trained airmen and happier families, millions of dollars saved in reduced training requirements and in better maintenance and operations, and a stronger Air Force."

"Sick Pay" Benefits Denied To Disabled

From first page—
ber, Mr. Ferris ruled that "a member of the Armed Forces on the retired list for physical disability is no longer 'absent from work' for the purpose of the exclusion provided in Section 105 (d) (of the Internal Code—editor) when he performs services for the United States, whether such services are performed in the same department or in another department, agency or branch of the United States Government."

Disability retired personnel, Mr. Ferris said, may collect the "sick pay" tax exclusion if they work for a civilian employer or agency which is separate from the Federal Government.

Left in doubt in the present Internal Revenue decision is the status of retired military personnel who work for Government non-appropriated fund activities or who work for wholly-owned Government corporations.

When the sick pay benefits were first made available to disability retired military personnel in February of this year, the Internal Revenue Service had encouraged all disabled personnel to file claims if they thought they might be eligible. IRS reasoning was that if the claims were not filed before 15 April, eligible persons might have to forfeit "sick pay" tax refunds for calendar year 1954.

One of those top teams is at Martin—with 30,000 engineering man-years of experience in missile and space system pioneering.

Reserve Passovers Show Sharp Rise

From first page—

manders including four lawyers, two pilots and one ordnance engineer, were named from 248 in the zone.

The selection rate for Temporary officers was one out of every 20. Out of 718 in the promotion zone, 35 were chosen.

No Reserve or Temporary officers were picked from above or from below the zone which extended from LCdr. Melville T. Ross, Linal No. 20621-00, through LCdr. Jack L. Twedell, Linal No. 22200-25, in the 1 January 1958 Register.

The in-zone selection ratio for Regular officers was about 50%. There were 1,102 Regulars in the zone and 559 were named.

In addition to those chosen from within the zone, the board, headed by RADM. Frank W. Fenno, Jr., Commander, Cruiser-Destroyer Force, Pacific Fleet, picked 18 Regulars from positions above the senior officer in the zone and nine from slots below the anchor-man.

The junior officer selected was LCdr. Dickson W. Alderton, whose lineal position is 436 numbers below the zone.

Admiral Fenno's board considered 516 Regular, 159 Temporary and 59 Reservists who hold lineal positions senior to the top man in the zone. There were 2,068 officers in all categories in the zone.

Of the total number named for three stripes, there were 555 Unrestricted Line and 73 Restricted Line selections.

The Unrestricted Line group contains 221 General duty officers and 334 in the Air Arm. Among those named from within the aeronautical group are 322 Naval Aviators, two blimp pilots and 10 non-pilots.

The Restricted Line selections include 13 Engineering Duty Officers, seven Aeronautical Engineering Duty Officers, 27 Special Duty Officers and 26 Limited Duty Officers.

Included in the 140-designator category of EDO are two who specialize in ordnance engineering—one Regular and one Reservist.

Two of the seven in the AEDO group are aerological experts.

Among the 27 SDO's named for increased rank are 16 communications, five law, three public information, one photography, and two naval intelligence specialists.

In naming LDO's, the board considered all officers through LCdr. John B. Saylor, Linal No. 21064-00.

The LDO selections break down into the following fields: aviation electronics, six; electronics, five; deck, four; administration, four; ordnance, three; aviation maintenance, two; aviation operations, one; and engineering, one.

In making its choices from above the zone, the board picked up one General Line officer; two pilots; four EDO's; two SDO's; and nine LDO's.

Of the nine officers selected from below the zone, eight are Line officers, including four flyers, and one EDO.

The total number named for three-stripe rank is 202 fewer than were named by last year's board which chose 830, including 44 active duty Reservists.

The number of Reserve officers picked for commander constitutes the smallest group to be named since Fiscal Year 1952 when a separate board was convened to consider USNR's. The FY '57 board selected 75 Reservists. In the years before that the following numbers were chosen: FY '56, 197; FY '55, 159; FY '54, 195; and FY '53, 209.

Total numbers selected during the same years were: FY '52, 680; FY '53, 292; FY '54, 1,071; FY '55, 1,807; FY '56, 1,085; and FY '57, 378.

The first 100 officers on the FY '59 lineal list, excluding LDO's, have been ordered to take immediate physical examinations for promotion. The next 200 selectees, from LCdr. James C. Caskey through LCdr. Harry E. Carter, will be examined in December, and the remainder in May.

There are still two officers picked by last year's board waiting to don their silver oak leaves. Lieutenant Commanders in the senior group this year are expected to put on the insignia of their new rank in about 90 days, with various retroactive dates of rank.

All LDO's through Homer A. Giddens are ordered to take immediate physical exams. Lieutenant Commanders Norman F. Mennecke through Lavern C. Moore will be given physicals in December and the remainder in May.

Here is a lineal list of the selectees:

Trying to save a $10 bill could cost you thousands from accidents like these...

Accidents can happen anytime, anywhere. Your golf ball strikes the caddy... your bullet hits another hunter... your children break a neighbor's picture window... your wife scalds a guest with hot coffee... your dog bites the mailman... the milkman breaks a leg on your back porch. These accidents, and many more, can result in costly judgments that may run into the thousands.

Now for the first time, USAA, serving the Armed Forces officer with low cost automobile insurance since 1922, makes available

THE USAA COMPREHENSIVE PERSONAL LIABILITY POLICY

With this new CPL policy you get financial protection against everyday accidents that might happen at or away from your home. Accidents that might injure another person or through negligence cause damage to the property of others.

For as little as $10 a year you can have the new CPL policy giving you $10,000 liability coverage and meeting medical payments up to $250. For less than three cents a day additional cost liability coverage of $50,000 can be provided and medical payments coverage increased to $1,000. Higher limits are also available at nominal cost as are many additional coverages.

USAA employs no agents. It is a non-profit insurance association under the direction of active and retired officers of the Armed Services. All selling is by mail and the resulting savings are passed on to policyholders. USAA affiliated claims services are located in all areas where the CPL policy is offered.

Don't delay. Write today for application blank and descriptive folder of the new USAA Comprehensive Personal Liability Policy. Be protected from costly every day accidents.

The USAA Membership is limited to active and retired officers, cadets, and warrant officers of the following Services of the United States of America: Army, Air Force, Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, Public Health Service, Coast and Geodetic Survey; officers and warrant officers of the National Guard and the Reserve components, when ordered to extended active Federal duty and as long as they retain their commissions, and Foreign Service Officers of the Department of State. TAC Opens Course For New Pilots, F-100F Has Featured Role In Program

A new course for pilots entering TAC from Basic Flying Schools has begun at Luke AFB, Ariz.

A similar school is scheduled for Williams AFB, Ariz.

The course covers 130 hours in 108 days and is followed by a "top-off" 50-hour, Operational Training Unit Course at Nellis AFB, Nev.

When the program is in full swing, it will no longer be necessary for a tactical unit to be responsible for training newly assigned pilots. By the time a pilot reaches the operational unit, all he will need in the way of training will be orientation in the local area.

Pilots undergo processing and instrument briefing the first day. This is followed by: 10 days of instrument work in the T-33 jet trainer; six days of academic work and flight line briefing on the F-100 Super Sabre; 51 days of tactical flying in the F-100; 10 days of instrument work in the T-33 and the two-seat F-100F; 29 days of tactical flying in the F-100, and one day of wind-up processing and graduation.

Beginning the 130-hour training program the students fly seven sorties of instrument time in the T-33, followed by 10 sorties of transition time in the F-100. Eight of the transition flights are flown dual in the F-100F to insure that the student is thoroughly checked out in the supersonic aircraft.

Throughout the course sorties are flown on missions covering aerobatics, formation flying, air-to-ground gunnery, air-to-air gunnery, air combat maneuvering, instrument work, nuclear weapons delivery, night transition, night formation flying, and applied tactics. Dual time begins each phase of the instruction.

According to training personnel, one of the most valuable tools of the new program is the North American F-100F. The two-seat Super Sabre permits the instructor-pilot to give a more efficient evaluation of the performance of the student than was possible in the past when the IP was flying in another aircraft or on the ground.

The 50-hour course at Nellis will consist of training in operational tactical missions and is designed to add the "hard polish" to the finished product of the first course—the fully qualified, combat ready, F-100 pilot.

The first course at Nellis is scheduled to begin in April 1959 with students coming from the 130-hour course, and a few from operational TAC units.

Meantime, a 50-hour course for TAC pilots with less than 500 hours jet-time began at Nellis last month. Students for this course were taken from operational tactical units.

The interim course will be phased out when the "top-off" course goes into effect next April.

Completion of the course does not necessarily mean immediate reassignment out of TAC, according to Aircrew Training Branch officials, although graduates of the school will fill levies placed by the overseas commands, USAFE and PAF.

Manned Missile Idea Gaining As Next Step In Use Of Space, SAC Chief Says

Interest in manned missiles, combining many of the advantages of the missile and the manned bomber, is growing, General Thomas S. Power, Commander in Chief of the Strategic Air Command, told the Air Force Association here 26 September.

The manned missile, said SAC's commander, is foremost in discussions of the next major step in the strategic use of space. This interest, he declared, stems from the recognition that missiles will supplement rather than replace the manned bomber, for at least the foreseeable future.

"The evolution of a manned missile," General Power said, "would, of necessity, be gradual and in measured steps. The forerunner of such a missile could well be the B-70 chemical bomber which is presently under development as a successor to the most advanced bomber in SAC's present inventory, the B-52. The B-70 will operate at speeds and altitudes which approach missile performance although still considerably below the performance of a ballistic missile flashing into and out of space."

Current studies concerning a manned missile, General Power continued, would possibly lead to a strategic vehicle that might even exceed the performance of the ballistic missile.

"I am referring to projects like 'Dyna-Soar,'" he said, "which is investigating the feasibility of a manned orbital space vehicle. This vehicle would be rocket-powered into orbit and, after circling the earth once or twice, skip-glide back to earth along a path which would avoid unacceptable heating of its surfaces due to atmospheric friction. Indeed, such a vehicle would represent the first true manned strategic space craft."

Ramstein To Malstrom

Lt. Col. William B. Crane, who had been stationed at Ramstein, Germany, has joined the 4061st Installation Squadron at Malstrom AFB, Mont.

GREETED AT CARSWELL—Maj. Gen. Charles W. Schott, recently assigned as Deputy Commander of Second Air Force, Barksdale AFB, La., left, is greeted by Brig. Gen. Nils O. Ohman, Commander of the 19th Air Division, Carswell AFB, Texas.

SAC Crews Ready For "World Series"

Thirty-nine bomb wings will send 156 handpicked combat crews to the 1958 SAC Bombing and Navigation Competition 13-18 October.

The competition, which will take place over the Western United States, will see top bomber crews fly the B-52, the B-47 and the B-36 in what SAC headquarters has termed "the severest test yet of target-finding and target-destroying abilities of professional air crews."

Great Britain's Royal Air Force will be represented again this year. Eight top crews of the RAF Bomber Command will bring their swept-winged, four-jet V-bombers to the "World Series of Bombing."

Participating crews will get only one chance to fly the competition mission this year. There will be no practice missions. Targets were announced only two weeks before opening day.

This year, each SAC bomb wing will enter four crews and each crew's mission will be counted. The new scoring method puts a premium on the demonstrated reliability of the crews. In previous competitions, each wing entered two crews, with each scored on the best two of three missions flown, for a wing scoring of the best four out of six missions.

Bomber crews will be required to fly a night celestial leg, in addition to bombing three widely separated targets by radar simulated bombs.

AF Officer Gets 15th Service Decoration, One Of Them Is Army Legion Of Merit

Lt. Col. Ervin C. Ethell, Tenth AF Director of Flying Safety and Flight Standardization, Selfridge AFB, Mich., has been awarded the Air Force Commendation Medal—his 15th decoration in 17 years' service.

Maj. Gen. Robert E. L. Eaton, Tenth Air Force Commander, presented the latest award for distinguished and meritorious service while serving as Air Force Senior Advisor to the 198th Fighter-Interceptor Squadron of the Puerto Rico Air National Guard from 1955 to 1958.

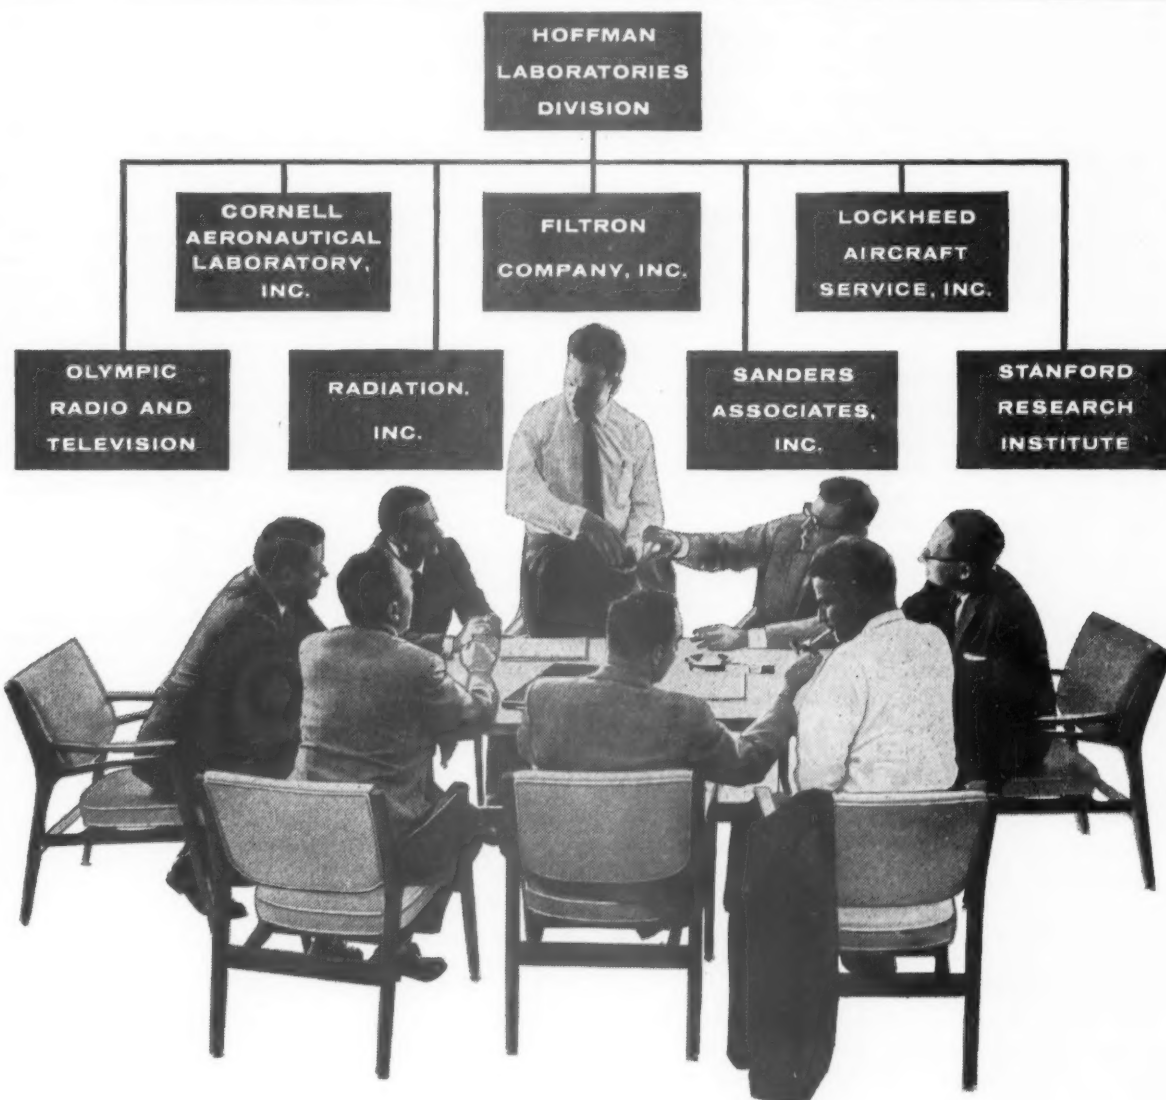

During a Korean tour, Colonel Ethell was presented the Army Legion of Merit from General Matthew Ridgway for creating and supervising a massive combined air-ground operation between the Korean Army, U. S. Army and the Fifth

Air Force, to wipe out guerilla warfare behind U. N. lines in S. Korea.

Col. Morrison Commended

Col. Erwin G. Morrison has received the Air Force Commendation Medal from Maj. Gen. Robert E. L. Eaton, Commander of Tenth Air Force, Selfridge AFB, Mich., for meritorious service as the general's Special Assistant for Reserve Affairs.

Colonel Morrison, the author of several books, held down a key NATO job in the information field with General Eaton in Turkey before taking over the Special Assistant's post two years ago. The colonel leaves Selfridge to command the 2479th Air Reserve Training Wing at San Francisco.

The Team behind Tall Tom

The Hoffman TEAM approach (Total Engineering and Administrative Management) is a new concept in electronic systems management. Under the leadership of Hoffman as prime contractor, the TEAM is concentrating the maximum engineering capabilities of eight selected firms on development of the Air Force's highly sophisticated TALL TOM (AN/ALD-3) Electronic Reconnaissance System. The TALL TOM TEAM gives promise that the complete system will be delivered at a substantial saving in time and money.

By utilizing with optimum efficiency and economy the specialized talents of any number of large and small organizations, the Hoffman TEAM concept is directly applicable to research, development and production of other complex electronic systems. Inquiries are invited regarding the application of this unique Hoffman TEAM approach to your systems problems.

Defense Understanding Emphasized At White House

Appointment of Maj. Gen. Wilton B. Persons, USA-Ret., as Assistant to the President, succeeding Mr. Sherman Adams, points up the experienced and sympathetic understanding of the National Defense which characterizes the Administration at its top levels.

Further emphasizing this fortunate situation are the appointments of Col. Bryce N. Harlow, USAR, as General Persons' special assistant for Congressional Affairs, and Lt. Gen. Elwood R. Quesada, USAF-Ret., to head the new Federal Aviation Agency.

It is no happenstance that these men, like the President, have come to these positions of high responsibility at this time. The war demonstrated their capabilities for leadership and their devotion to their country. In the perilous world of today, America needs men of their caliber.

The elevation of General Persons to a post of such responsibility is particularly gratifying. He has worked closely with General Eisenhower for many years. In 1933 they both served in the office of the Assistant Secretary of War, "Major" Eisenhower as assistant executive officer, and "Captain" Persons as liaison officer with the House Military Affairs Committee. Subsequently, Major Eisenhower moved a few doors down the hall to the office of the Chief of Staff, General Douglas MacArthur.

So highly did General Eisenhower consider General Persons' ability that although Persons had retired in 1949, he was recalled to active duty two years later and was assigned to General Eisenhower's Supreme Headquarters of the Allied Powers in Europe.

General Persons' usefulness to the President and the nation is increased by the high regard in which he is held among members of both parties in Congress. It is noteworthy that his new appointment drew favorable comments from Democratic as well as Republican leaders.

The nation is fortunate to have such capable men willing to continue to serve this country in these exacting positions of great responsibility.

Services Move For BOQ Improvements

The bachelor officer, invariably the forgotten man when housing plans are laid, may now look forward to a better deal.

When government housing was brought to a standstill during the war, to be replaced by privately built apartments under the Wherry and Capehart provisions, the emphasis was on "family" units. Bachelor officers lived either in the pre-war, run-down BOQs, or went out and rented expensive apartments.

But the action of the recent Congress raising the limit on construction costs for BOQ units from $7500 to $8500 has opened the way to new thinking within the Services themselves. (See story on first page of this issue). The Army, for example, is talking publicly of a policy objective of two rooms and private bath for each bachelor officer.

The Department of Defense study now under way is labeled as "informal." This is at least a beginning, but we feel much sounder progress could be made if the Secretary of Defense would formalize the action by appointing a board and giving it a directive and a deadline for making concrete recommendations.

Top Efficiency Of Reserve And Guard Units Essential

These perilous times demand the highest efficiency in the Reserve Components of all of the Armed Services, particularly in light of the continual reductions being made in the standing forces.

This point has been pressed home in recent days by top Army and Air Force leaders.

General Bruce C. Clarke, Commanding General of the U. S. Continental Army Command, told the National Guard Association in Atlantic City this week that an increase in quality of personnel is imperative to off-set the Army's reduction in numerical strength. "The unfit and unwilling," General Clarke warned, "must be rigorously eliminated." CONARC, its commander declared, will aid their progress in every way possible and he, himself, will visit the Guard often, "garnering ideas to help us help you."

General Curtis E. LeMay, Air Force Vice Chief of Staff, told the Air Force Association in Dallas (see last week's JOURNAL) that Reserve units or individuals not ready for service should be "scrubbed." On the other hand, he said, the Air Force is ready to give all possible support to those sharing the responsibility for carrying out the Air Force's mission.

The aggressor nations with their great manpower and technical advances and the quick reaction time of modern warfare make it essential that we have substantial and efficient reserve components to back up the standing forces. All must work together to this end.

READERS' VIEWS

Officer "Bonus Players"

Letter to Editor, THE JOURNAL signed "Startled" in 2 Aug. 1958 issue is most interesting, however, "Startled" appears to be a Crybaby concerned mostly with his own welfare. It is because of actions such as his in writing a letter of this nature that so much outside influence is initiated in making policies for the Armed Forces. It is my opinion that regulations established for the Armed Forces by Armed Forces Policy makers have had the interest and welfare of all members of the Armed Forces at heart. Any regulation may affect adversely a few individuals; however, the regulation is a good one if it is of benefit to the organization and the majority of the personnel.

Some of the greatest confusion and adverse effects upon Armed Forces personnel have resulted because of outside influence and ideas brought to bear on those responsible for personnel planning.

"Startled" doesn't state he is in the #1 job but his letter indicates that he is. If so, how was he selected for the position? It is reasonable to believe that some of the other Colonels are as fully as capable as he to hold down the job. Solution on this particular problem on pay is selection.

Some of the so-called bright young officers of the Armed Forces are comparable to the Bonus-players of baseball. If the breaks don't continue for them they yell the loudest and want changes immediately effected to place them again in a favorable position or they resign the service or complain of its regulations.

Considerable more than education and intelligence is required in the qualifications of an officer but these two factors are being considered primarily in selection of personnel other than academy graduates. It is my understanding only the top ten (10%) of ROTC graduates are offered Commissions. Would "Startled" have been commissioned had this policy applied?

It is repeated, "Startled" appears too interested in his own case.

Survivor Benefits Injustice

It was most gratifying to note in the 13 September number of THE JOURNAL your positive stand for equity in the treatment of service widows.

Living as I do in a community where a large number of retired service people have made their homes, the injustice of the present laws is constantly before us. I am particularly interested in some corrective legislation, such as the Utt or Sparkman bills, because I am one of those (shall we say unfortunate) who got through 35 years of service with only seven days in the hospital, retired with no disability, and a couple of years later had a heart attack—not service-connected by VA decision. Which means that my widow will get no pension whatever because in our early married life we had initiated a life insurance program that will assure her of an income of about $1,500 a year—an income wholly inadequate in these times.

Other contemporaries of mine were not able to do even that well because they had more children to educate. Although I do not know of any specific cases among the widows of enlisted personnel there must be many cases of real distress.

I hope that you will continue to press for the enactment of the Utt or Sparkman bills, or for some compromise measure for the relief of those forgotten widows. An increase of the standard pension of about $50, and an increase of the $1,400 income limitation, to about double those amounts to compensate for the increased cost of living, would even be acceptable.

COLONEL, USA RET.

IN THE JOURNAL

10 Years Ago—The Bureau of Naval Personnel has issued instructions to commanding officers of all ships and stations, giving them authority to establish medical and professional examination boards. Establishment of such boards give rise to the opinion that selection boards, which have been in the planning stage for several months, soon will be announced.

50 Years Ago—It is held by the Judge Advocate General that the expenses of a military escort taking a retired Army officer to the government hospital for the insane are a proper charge against the appropriation for transportation of the Army.

95 Years Ago—As the facts in regard to the physical condition of our people, revealed by the recent draft, appear to have excited much astonishment, it may be well to call attention to the fact that about thirty-five per cent of those who present themselves for medical examination, as recruits in the British army, are rejected on account of physical disability.

Air Force Honors Missilemen

The presentation was made at the Air Force Association's Space Age Luncheon. The recipients were Capt. Walter A. Loughridge, missile maintenance officer of the 576th Strategic Missile Squadron, and M/Sgt. James J. Mustaine, missile systems analyst technician and non-commissioned officer in charge of an Atlas ICBM launch crew at Cooke AFB, Calif.

Must Cut PCS Movements, Lt. Gen. O'Donnell Tells AF Commanders

Lt. Gen. Emmett O'Donnell, Deputy Chief of Staff, Personnel, has told Air Force commanders that frequency of PCS movements "must be reduced and further travel economies must be found."

In a personal letter to commanders, General O'Donnell said: "You may expect further curtailment of PCS funds and additional restrictions on travel."

Congress cut sharply Pentagon requests for travel money in the fiscal '59 budget.

Here is the text of General O'Donnell's communication:

"You are well aware of the actions taken by the Congress to improve the attractiveness of a service career. Increased pay legislation, family housing appropriations, the dislocation allowance law, Dependents Medicare Act and other benefits have been approved by the Congress in recent years to aid the services in retaining high-caliber personnel. It is logical for the Congress to expect a return on the investment in the form of reduced personnel turnover.

"This year's military personnel budget is extremely 'tight' and will require prudent management to accomplish the Air Force program without taking undesirable personnel actions such as were necessary in Fiscal Year 1958. The frequency of PCS movements must be reduced and further travel economies must be found. Current travel programs are being reviewed and only priority moves will be approved to meet operational requirements, essential training, and overseas commitments.

"Request your personal support to insure that every possible action be taken within your command to reduce PCS movements without impairing mission effectiveness. You may expect further curtailment of PCS funds and additional restrictions on travel."

A MOVE CAN BE EXPECTED in the next session of Congress, coincidental with action to restore the commission of Lt. Gen. E. R. Quesada, USAF-Ret., who has resigned to become Federal Aviation Agency Administrator (Page 1) to restore also the rank of General of the Army to President Eisenhower upon his departure from the White House.

BEYOND THE INDIVIDUAL CASES of the two generals, who have resigned their commissions, the '59 Congress will be asked by the Pentagon to explore the entire field of Federal employment of retired military officers. As The Journal has pointed out in a series of recent articles, including last week's disclosure of how a Navy rear admiral suffered a $1000 pay loss because he took a Government post, present dual compensation legislation discriminates sharply against those who have served in uniform.

NOT EVERY OFFICER is in the position of General Quesada in being able to forfeit his retirement rights in order to take a Government post. Laws now on the books, some of them dating back 75 years, are denying the Government the services of scores of retired military officers.

IMPLEMENTATION OF PROFICIENCY PAY, as far as could be learned this week, is going to be a matter for the individual Services, once final DoD approval is obtained. This obviously could lead to a race, with one Service seeking to start the program before another. It would be better from a morale point of view if an announcement were made that the first pro pay advancements would be made simultaneously. Service officials are of the opinion that the $30 payments will not create difficulties as a result of the fact that only a relatively small percentage of EM will get the extra pay at the start of the program. It will be surprising, however, if some ill feeling does not result in units where some EM will receive proficiency pay, others not.

UNDONE BY THE SUN—that's the valid protest of the Army's R&D Chief, Lt. Gen. Arthur G. Trudeau. He was at Natick, Mass., this week to participate in the dedication of the nation's largest solar furnace (Page 3). Came the moment to start operations. The general pressed a button, and said: "I declare this solar furnace open." Only problem was that the sun sneaked behind a cloud; there was no "fuel" for the furnace. On a second try, the sun behaved, and the general's orders were carried out.

TERM RETENTION CONTRACTS for Reservists will be a priority matter before the House Armed Services Committee. That assurance was given by Representative Overton L. Brooks (D-La.) to the Air Force Association convention last week. A powerful member of the Committee, Mr. Brooks said that the Defense Department "has been persuaded to go along with" the term contract idea. He also reported that a complete study of the Reserve Officers' Promotion Act is planned.

THE NEW NATIONAL AERONAUTICS AND SPACE ADMINISTRATION is off to a flying start in "unification." In addition to $117 million in Defense funds transferred to NASA, it gets control of the Navy's Vanguard Program, and will direct the two Lunar Probes assigned to the Air Force Ballistic Missile Division and the two assigned to the Army Ballistic Missile Agency. Three satellite projects assigned to ABMA also come under NASA direction. NASA will take control of the Air Force's 1 million pound thrust single engine booster program, with the future control of the Army's 1 million pound thrust cluster of engines still to be worked out. Both projects have been awarded to North American Aviation.

THE NUCLEAR ROCKET ENGINE project in the Air Force, as well as work on fluorine engines, also are being transferred to NASA. The Air Force will turn over a total of $57.8 million from its budget to NASA; the Pentagon's Advanced Research Projects Agency will allocate $59.2 million to NASA.

ARMY OFFICIALS INSIST that the new enlisted management program will not add to the administrative burden of commanders at the company level. These young officers will be skeptical; experience has shown them when "management" programs are put into effect, invariably it means more paper work. However, the Army is in the midst of another campaign to ease the deskwork of its company commanders, and there can be hope that the Pentagon promises regarding the new enlisted program will be fulfilled.

PENTAGON GROUND RULES apparently permit a Service Secretary to hold a news conference anywhere except in his own office. The Secretaries are not reluctant to meet with newsmen outside Washington, and in the Nation's Capital they are quite willing to hold conferences at the airport or on national T.V. programs. Secretary of the Army Brucker, for example, was on "Meet the Press" last week, doing an admirable job of presenting the Army's viewpoint to the public. But when it comes to a Pentagon news conference, that's another matter.

THE NAVY CAN EXPECT STINGING INQUIRIES from the Reserve Officers Association in the wake of the disclosure (Page 1) that only seven Reserve lieutenant commanders—out of 248 eligibles—were chosen for promotion to commander. The Navy, of course, is hurting because of a critical "hump" problem, but ROA officials indicated to The Journal this week that they will insist on explanations from the Pentagon as to why the passover rate among Reservists is so high.

THE ARMY HAS ORDERED that records of all officers be screened to determine those who are now or have been assigned since 1 July 1956 to duties involving amphibious operations.

SILENT WITNESS at the first public unveiling of the Air Force's Atlas Missile, a highlight of the AFA convention, was the Navy's already operational Regulus II missile. The Regulus was mounted on a revolving platform across the street from the Atlas and in full view of the ceremony. Chance Vought, builder of the Regulus, is a home industry at Dallas and an active participant in the AFA convention.

HAULING THE ATLAS from the Convair plant in San Diego to Dallas, construction of the base, and other items in connection with its first public showing, cost approximately $75,000.

THE NAVY SCORED ANOTHER FIRST at the AFA Convention when Chance Vought's second Crusader III Navy fighter made its initial flight from Hensley Field. The all-weather fighter, described as capable of more than twice the speed of sound, made the checkout flight in preparation to being ferried to the Air Force Flight Test Center, Edwards AFB, Calif., to join the first Crusader III.

THE AIR FORCE IS PLUGGING a Marine Corps officer's book. The AF Office of Information Services has sent to the field a feature report on "Baa Baa Black Sheep" by Col. Gregory "Pappy" Boyington, WWII Medal of Honor winner. The AF release notes that the author "took the better part of 10 years by his own confessions to sober up so he could write his autobiography . . . It was worth the long wait."

NO LANGUAGE PROBLEM confronts the Commanding General of the Army's Infantry Center, Ft. Benning, Ga., when he talks with Chinese Nationalist Army students. Maj. Gen. Paul L. Freeman, jr., a student in Peking in 1939 and Assistant Military Attache in Chungking from 1942-43, is fluent in the language.

NEWS OF CANADA'S DECISION to incorporate the Boeing Bomarc ground-to-air missile into its air defense system came just in time to cheer the opening sessions of the Air Force Association's convention in Dallas. Transcripts of the announcement by Canadian Prime Minister John D. Diefenbaker circulated through the hotel lobbies and convention meeting rooms. That Canada choose the USAF's antiaircraft missile over the U. S. Army's already operational Nike system was looked upon as an Air Force victory in this hot inter-Service controversy.

THE CANADIAN PRIME MINISTER pointed out that their supersonic interceptor, the CF-105 Arrow, will not be ready for issue to squadrons until late in 1961, but that the preponderance of opinion is that by the late '60's manned aircraft will be less effective in meeting the threat than previously expected. By that time Bomarc is expected to be operational and Canada plans to set up two bases for it in the general north Ontario and Quebec areas. Mr. Diefenbaker also said that Canadian industry would like to get in on the production of the missiles and their associated equipment.

CONGRESSIONAL CRITICISM of the Air Force's airlift of newsmen to the Air Force Academy in August has made the USAF high command gun shy. Press flights had been set up to transport reporters to the AFA convention in Dallas where the USAF was concentrating a number of important news events. But when the project hit the office of the Secretary and the Chief of Staff it was "scrubbed." Consequence was that newsmen, instead of going in regularly organized "press" flights, were, at the last minute, salted in with planes carrying Air Force officials. "Invitational orders" issued to some reporters even carried the restriction "not good on MATS flights."

PUBLIC RELATIONS OFFICERS charged with the responsibility of seeing that the American people get as full as possible a picture of how their defense money is spent regret this squeamishness, but feel sure it will wear off in time. Helping the press to keep the public informed is something even Congress would not seriously oppose for long.

AT LEAST 500 DOGS will be used to help guard Nike Hercules sites throughout the Nation. The first sentry teams, consisting of 28 sentry dogs and 28 handlers, is in training at Ft. Benning, Ga. Last year, the Army closed its Dog Training Center at Ft. Carson, Colo. At that time, most Army dogs were being trained for Air Force duty. The Air Force, its Army source leashed, opened a K-9 center at Lackland AFB, Tex.

Col. Wald Of Army Gets Jupiter Missile Post To Work With Air Force Units

COL. John J. Wald, USA, has been assigned as Jupiter Project Officer at the Army Ballistic Missile Agency, Huntsville, Ala.

Formerly Executive Officer to the Deputy Post Commander, Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md., he will coordinate with the Air Force the development and employment of the Jupiter missile system.

Prior to his assignment to Aberdeen in October 1956, Colonel Wald, USMA '39, was with the MAAG in Viet Nam for a year.

Colonel Wald received a Master's degree in Electrical Engineering from the University of Pennsylvania in 1949 and began a two-year tour as mathematics instructor at West Point.

Colonel and Mrs. Wald have three children, Joan, 17; John, Jr., 14; and Jerrilyn, 12.

Col. George W. Barry, has been appointed Commanding Officer of the 594th Transportation Group (Movement Control), Headquarters, US Army Communications Zone, Europe at Orleans, France. He served four years as PMS&T at John Carroll University, Cleveland.

Colonel Barry is accompanied on his European tour of duty by his wife, Mary Margaret, and their daughter, Georgia.

Col. Shaw Named PMS&T

Col. Millard Shaw, Arty, assigned to Fourth Army Headquarters, Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., is under orders for duty as PMST at the University of Missouri in Columbia. He reports there 10 January 1959.

Gen. Taylor Tells New Guard Plan; Convention Hears Some Sharp Talk

Previous plans to cut National Guard manpower and units have been abandoned and approval has been given to a continued strength of 400,000, as voted by Congress, with 27 Pentomic divisions of five battle groups each.

This was reported at Atlantic City, N. J., 30 September by General Maxwell D. Taylor in an address to the 80th General Conference of the National Guard Association.

General Taylor spoke after the Conference had heard a blistering report from Maj. Gen. William H. Harrison, Jr., Association President, which declared: "It is paradoxical that we who seek with honor, loyalty, and personal sacrifice, to prepare ourselves for the common defense must expend our individual and collective time and energies in fighting for the right to fight for our country."

General Harrison was referring, of course, to the fact that the Association during the past year has resisted vigorously attempts that were made to cut the strength of the Guard.

Although the Army recommended a continued strength of 400,000, the Administration cut this to 360,000 in the budget sent to Congress. The House and Senate stipulated, however, that the 400,000 strength must be maintained.

Th past year has seen the Army announce and revise several times its plans for the Guard, including at one time a proposal to eliminate six of the 27 divisions.

General Taylor told the Conference that the plan now approved provides for 27 Pentomic divisions. He noted that the manning levels of the divisions would vary, depending on the schedule for their deployment in event of an emergency.

General Taylor said that on-site air defense units of the Army National Guard will be maintained at 84% of full strength.

The Chief of Staff also stated that certain non-divisional units which do not have a "necessary role in approved war plans" must be eliminated "so that our limited resources can be concentrated to support units with essential mobilization missions."

In his report to the Conference, General Harrison criticized the Air Force, as well as the Army.

"For many years," said General Harrison, "we have enjoyed a close and cooperative relationship with the Department of the Air Force and have been filled with genuine respect for the forward-looking policies and considerations which that Department has applied to the Air National Guard."

"Last fall," he stated, "this plateau of harmony was rudely disturbed by the unilateral announcement of certain actions taken by the Air Force without reference to the Air National Guard and the states involved. . . . Acknowledgment by Air Force authorities that they had erred procedurally under the law and promises to follow it in the future are small consolation to those of our Guardsmen and those states which were faced with what might be termed a 'fait accompli,'" said General Harrison.

The Association President commented: "While I do not possess a crystal ball which can foretell the patterns of future Air Force development, I am greatly concerned that our Air Guardsmen may become too highly stylized and characterized in their present missions."

(Next week's issue of The Journal will report additional highlights of the Association meeting.)

Disability Retired Officers Will Fight Discrimination Before Court Of Claims

Charges of gross discrimination against officers retired under the Reserve Retirement Act of 3 April 1939 will be presented in the U. S. Court of Claims.

These Reserve officers, unlike their counterparts retired under the Career Compensation Act of 1949, may retire for physical disability only at the highest grade they held for six months or more on active duty.

They may not, according to the Military Department and the Comptroller General, retire at their highest permanent Reserve grade, as is permitted disability retirees under the Career Compensation Act.

Under the recent Tracy and Budd decisions of the U. S. Court of Claims, Reserve officers retired for physical disability under the 1949 Act may retire at their highest permanent Reserve rank, even though they never served in that rank on active duty.

Two cases which will be presented for decision pose the question of whether officers retired under the 1939 Reserve law may get the same retirement privileges as those retired under the Career Compensation Act.

The Court will be asked to allow officers retired under the 1939 Act to elect their higher permanent Reserve rank under that Act or, if eligible, under the Career Compensation Act.

The first question will be presented in the case of Capt. Frank D. Nerl, USAR-Ret., who retired in 1950 under the provisions of the 1939 Reserve Act. Apparently not eligible for Career Compensation Act benefits, he will ask to be paid at his permanent Reserve grade of major under the 1939 Law.

In the second case, Lt. Col. Pendleton Edgar, USAFR-Ret., will ask the Court to give him either the pay of full colonel under the Career Compensation Act, or at least full colonel's retired pay under the 1939 Act. When he retired in 1950, Colonel Edgar was eligible for retirement under either act, but had chosen to retire under the 1939 statute.

Colonel Edgar claims the Air Force misinformed him about his right to retire at the rank of full colonel under the Career Compensation Act.

In both suits, the retired officers will be able to obtain retroactive benefits only for six years prior to the date they filed their claim with the Court. A statute of limitations bars the Court's awarding back pay for longer periods.

Both claimants are represented by Emery and Wood, 917 Fifteenth St. N.W., Washington, D. C., who also acted as counsel in the Tracy case.

Miley is chairman, will meet the third Wednesday of each month for luncheon and bridge at the Army Navy Country Club.

ARMY STATES ITS NUMBER ONE PROBLEM

THE lack of adequate housing this week was declared the Army's "most critical morale problem." This was asserted in connection with release of details on the enlisted management program.

The Army said "this problem encompasses all types of housing, but is particularly pressing in the area of family housing."

It was pointed out that when entire divisions were rotated under Operation Gyroscope, the Army invariably was able to provide only about 50% of the required 4000 family housing units. This resulted in tailoring the division to fit the housing availability.

During the past three years, progress has been made on the Army housing front with addition of 30,000 housing units. However, the Army will still be short 56,372 family quarters when the fiscal '58 program is completed.

AF Housing Shortage Serious, Says Cofs

DALLAS, TEX.

The Air Force is still faced with a very serious housing shortage, General Thomas D. White, USAF Chief of Staff, told the Air Force Association here.

"It is my earnest hope," the General said, "that relief in this area will be forthcoming in further appropriations for this purpose."

The new pay scales, the Chief of Staff reported, are already proving of value in better retention rates in all categories of Air Force personnel.

"I feel sure," he said, "that the increased cost of the new military pay bill and other funds expended to make an Air Force career more attractive will be amortized many times over in the years to come through increased efficiency, lower training requirements and less aircraft and equipment attrition."

Want A Letter From Santa Claus? AF Youngsters Need Only Write

CHILDREN of Air Force personnel can receive a letter from Santa Claus during the coming Christmas season, thanks to members of Detachment 1, 55th Weather Reconnaissance Squadron, Ladd AFB, Alaska.

It works this way. The Air Force parent writes a letter to his child and signs it "Santa Claus." The letter is addressed to the youngster and the envelope is stamped with the proper airmail return postage from Alaska.

The letter or letters should then be placed in a larger envelope and airmailed to: Santa's Mail Bag, c/o Detachment 1, 55th Weather Reconnaissance Squadron, APO 731, Seattle, Wash.

A few miles from Ladd, home of Detachment 1, 55th Weather Reconnaissance Squadron, there is a small post office officially called "Santa Claus House, North Pole." When the volunteer mailmen of Detachment 1 receive the letters, they will mail them back to the children from this post office. The United States Mail will do the rest, authentic postmark and all.

The 58th Weather Reconnaissance Squadron, now inactivated, mailed these letters to the youngsters last

INDUSTRY IN DEFENSE

ROCKET BUILDER—Nike Hercules is officially shown for the first time in the metropolitan New York area to a group of civic and industry leaders, public officials and press at Ft. Tilden, in Long Island. Shown is the builder of the propulsion system for the missile, Joseph C. Crosby (right), President of the Thiokol Chemical Corporation, with Brig. Gen. Robert A. Weapons Progress In The Fighting Forces

SUBMARINE TRITON:—Shipment of nuclear safety and control equipment for the Triton, largest submarine ever built, is announced by Allen B. Du Mont Laboratories, Inc. Designated a radar picket ship, the Triton will carry complex radar and other detection devices. Prime contractor is General Dynamics Corporation's Electric Boat Division.

The Triton will utilize the Du Mont instrumentation to monitor the atomic engines from "start up" to "full power." Developed and constructed for the Knolls Atomic Power Laboratory (KAPL) which General Electric operates for the AEC, the Du Mont instrumentation system is a special purpose computer capable of measuring from one to 10 billion units of neutron flux per second.

Douglas A3D—The Navy signed a $26 million follow-on contract for Douglas A3D-2 carrier-based attack airplanes. The A3D series is Naval aviation's heaviest carrier bomber, a twin jet, swept wing aircraft operational in the fleet since 1956. The contract is with the Douglas Aircraft Company, El Segundo, Calif.

Specifications call for design refinements and changes which improve the A3D's performance, mainly through use of a cambered leading edge on the A3D-2's wing. Lower stall speeds, and better stability at high speeds will result.

The El Segundo plant will build the new A3D-2's for delivery to the fleet in August 1960.

Thor and Atlas—Republic Aviation Corporation's Guided Missiles Division has received a $464,000 follow-on order from General Electric Company for intermediate range and intercontinental ballistic missile components. The subcontract, the second one received by the Republic unit, is for the production and assembly of nose cone structural units for the Thor and Atlas missiles.

POLARIS: On-schedule delivery of the first hardware for the Polaris fire control system is reported by W. R. Burrows, Manager-Manufacturing for the Ordnance Department of General Electric. The shipment, consisting of 11 enclosures housing electrical data transmission and power control equipment, was consigned to the Navy at Portsmouth, Va. It will be installed aboard the U.S.S. Observation Island, a surface vessel being outfitted to serve as a sea-going test bed for the FBM (Polaris).

New AF Logistic Techniques Seen Bringing Reductions In Facilities And Personnel

DALLAS, TEX.

NEW logistic techniques brought about by the changing character of weapons and warfare are such that the Air Force is making significant reductions in both facilities and personnel.

Maj. Gen. Frank A. Bogart, Director, Plans and Programs, Air Materiel Command, told the Air Force Association convention here, that greater reductions will be made in the future.

The World War II type of warfare, General Bogart said, with its emphasis on mass production and mass logistics, has become outmoded by the development of vastly improved weapon systems.

"Military competition between nations," he continued, "now seems to be at a developmental, rather than a mass production level. The key element has become technological progress itself, not only because the maintenance of an effective deterrent force is dependent upon it, but also because demonstrated technical superiority has become a condition of world leadership."

The mass logistic requirement of WWII, the general declared, is being replaced by a requirement for a much more precise, specialized type of logistics tailored to the individual needs of the complex, costly, and constantly changing weapon systems of today. We are, he said, "replacing logistics by saturation with logistics by specialization."

"As we adopt these new techniques," General Bogart pointed out, "we are able to make significant reductions in both facilities and personnel. Since 1952, four depots at an estimated cost of over a third of a billion dollars which were authorized to be built have been cancelled. In addition, we have been closing existing depot level facilities both abroad and at home whenever possible. Twenty-three have been closed since 1952 and an additional 18 are scheduled to be closed by 1962."

"There also have been significant reductions in depot level personnel. Since 1952 almost 53,000 level manpower spaces have been eliminated and by 1962 this reduction, even after deducting functions and spaces transferred to other commands, will total well over 65,000 personnel. Nor have all the reductions been in the field. Since 1951 Headquarters AMC personnel have been cut by over 5,000, a reduction of 56 per cent.

Facilities closed or scheduled for closing in the near future include: Northern Air Materiel Area, Europe, at Burtonwood, England; Southern Air Materiel Area, Europe, at Nouasseur, Morocco; Northern Air Materiel Area, Pacific, at Tachikawa, Japan; Southern Air Materiel Area, Pacific, at Clark AFB, Philippines Islands; Shelby Air Force Depot, Shelby, Ohio; Topeka Air Force Depot, Kans.; Maywood Air Force Depot, Calif.; Gadsden Air Force Depot, Gadsden, Ala.; Memphis Air Force Depot, Tenn.; and vehicle storage sites at Vancouver, Wash. and Laurinburg-Maxton, N. C.

SNAKE KILLS MINES—An improved version of the WW II mine-clearing "Snake," developed by the Army Engineer Research and Development Laboratories, Ft. Belvoir, Va., is being tested by troops in the field. After assembly, the 400-foot unit is towed to the minefield by a tank which pushes it over the field and detonates it by firing a machine gun into a bullet-sensitive fuse. Specially designed charges, the Army says, provide improved mine-clearing performance with less explosive than in the old model. The extruded aluminum structure was produced under contract with the Allison Steel Manufacturing Company, Phoenix, Ariz.

Major Baldwin Joins Academy Life Board

W. Lee Baldwin has been named to the Board of Directors of Academy Life Insurance Company, it is announced by Col. Henry I. Szymanski, USA-Ret., President.

For several months "the Major," as he is known in insurance circles, has been Management Consultant to Academy Life and has served on the Advisory Board.

Major Baldwin has had more than 30 years of experience as a life insurance executive. From 1938 through 1953, he was president of Security Life and Accident Company, Denver, and retains membership on that company's Board of Directors, as well as on the Boards of two other life insurance companies and a large Denver bank, in addition to his new post with Academy Life.

His military title of Major stems from the grade given him in connection with his service in the Alabama National Guard in WWI days.

"The Major has an imposing and life-long insurance background," Colonel Szymanski said. "It gives me great pleasure to welcome him to even closer association with our growing company."

NORTHROP-ATC TELL "NAME PLANE" PLANS

A "name the plane" contest designed to select a name for the new USAF-Northrop T-38, the nation's first supersonic basic trainer aircraft, is being conducted within the Air Training Command.

Sponsored jointly by ATC and Northrop Aircraft, Inc., Hawthorne, Calif., the contest will close 15 October. Grand prize will be a one-week all-expense paid vacation to either Bermuda, Hawaii, Cuba, Mexico City, or any vacation spot within the United States, or a $1,000 U. S. Savings Bond.

Judges for the contest are Maj. Gen. Carl A. Brandt, ATC Vice Commander; Brig. Gen. Thomas E. Moore, ATC Chief of Staff; Richard R. Nolan, Vice President and General Manager, Northrop Division, Northrop Aircraft, Inc.; John R. Allison, Vice President, Customer Relations, Northrop Division, Northrop Aircraft, Inc.; Harrington Drake, Western Manager of the Reuben H. Donnelly Corporation, nationally known contest administrators.

Marquardt Buys Missile Company

Marquardt Aircraft Company, Van Nuys, Calif., has acquired in a cash transaction assets of Associated Missile Products Company, a division of American Machine and Foundry Company.

Marquardt will continue the AMF division's operations as the Pomona Division in the present leased facilities at Pomona, Calif. Dr. Wendell B. Sell, General Manager of the AMF division, will continue in that capacity for Marquardt.

Marquardt's new Pomona Division, established in 1955, is a systems engineering organization with capabilities for specialized weapons support devices.

AFA Calls For Action On Cordiner "Missing Provisions"

From first page—

velopment and operation of new weapons systems not covered by current flight pay provisions; and

"(3) The career management provisions of the Cordiner Report should be adopted to allow needed flexibility in promotion and retirement policies."

The AFA membership also went on record as stating that "the provision of adequate housing for military personnel and their dependents remains an unsolved problem." They called on Congress and the Department of Defense to improve housing conditions by:

"(1) Extending the current Capehart-Rains Act;

"(2) Programming housing at remote and isolated areas; and

"(3) Programming housing for married lower grade airmen."

The Association also repeated its 1956 endorsement of the single service concept. The 1958 Reorganization Act, which the AFA had backed, was hailed as a "great step forward." The Association, however, asked "for continued action in this field with the immediate goal of a single promotion list for all ranks in all services and the ultimate goal of a single military service."

Its "Statement of Policy," unanimously adopted by the Association, said in part:

"We must concentrate on weapon systems best designed to cope with the threat and ruthlessly eliminate the others. Service tradition and rivalries are inefficient and expensive luxuries that do not add to our national defense."

"We desperately need consolidation of our three defense departments into one for efficiency, economy, coordination and the ability to respond instantly, with a maximum effort, in time of national emergency."

Invitation to SUDDEN DESTRUCTION

...even this tiny glow will actuate the super-sensitive, infra-red controls of the deadly Sidewinder missile.

Sidewinder, streaking through midnight skies on its mission of air-to-air defense, is but one dramatic example of Philco leadership in advanced infra-red technology. Conceived by the Naval Ordnance Test Station at China Lake . . . developed by Navy and Philco scientists . . . engineered and produced by Philco, the Sidewinder is a result of close weapons systems development coordination.

In the forefront of infra-red research and solid state physics, Philco is pioneering detectors which cover the entire IR spectrum including; proximity warning indicators, advanced photographic (black light) techniques, high precision industrial IR electronics, search gear and fire warning systems. Here is dramatic proof of Philco leadership in technology, capacity and flexibility. In the Wonder-World of advanced electronics . . . look ahead . . . and you'll choose Philco.

At Philco, opportunities are unlimited in electronics and mechanical research and engineering.

Defender plane, armed with wing-mounted Sidewinder missiles pursues target . . . Sidewinder is fired . . . guided by infra-red, the missile "homes" on target . . . bringing sudden and incapable destruction.
